

Personal CD Player

There is a direct link between listening to audio books and increased reading mastery. When students listen to audio books, they learn vocabulary, inflection, and pacing while learning to understand what reading proficiency sounds like. Whether students are native English speakers or not, teachers see significant reading gains in students who listen to audio books. The Califone personal CD player supports 1:1 instruction in a way that is not distracting to other students and allows the reader to repeat the experience as often as necessary.

The Califone CD Player has improved buffering to guard against accidental bumps and an ABS plastic shell for durability. While the CD102 is ideal for library use, studies report that students who are able to check out a personal CD Player and audio books to listen to at home have demonstrated reading improvement with this activity alone.
